THREE cuddly toys got jobs on a building site. When the building site workers started work the foreman called them over and said: "I have to warn you about something."

"You'll need to be on your guard against your fellow workers because they're a bunch of practical jokers – especially today."

"But what's so special about today?" asked the toys. The foreman replied: "You idiots – today's the day the teddy bears have their picks nicked."

We are a Christian country and will remain so. Any immigrants who don't like that can get out.

THOUSANDS of shoppers are gearing up to ring in the changes this Christmas...with a new mobile phone.

We're mad for mobiles in the UK, with more than 45million currently being used.

And one in three of us say we couldn't cope without our handset, according to a recent survey.

The tills will be ringing in the run-up to the festive period and we've put together an essential eight-page guide to bring you the hottest products currently on the market.

Inside you'll find Michelle Marsh's diary of a day without her phone, while Charlotte Church reveals a sexy holder for hers as we showcase the top 10 must-have items this Yule.

We also check out the coolest ringtones and discover what they say about you, while model Jodie
Kidd enjoys some phone flirting.

Now turn inside...it's jingle bells
all the way!

Michelle's

COULD you live without your mobile phone?

We sent Daily Star beauty Michelle Marsh to see if she could cope without modern life's most popular gadget.

More than 80 per cent of Brits now own a mobile and like the rest of us busy model Michelle has come to rely on hers.

She discovered that spending 24 hours without her mobile left her wringing her hands.

Here she takes us through the diary of her frighteningly phone-less day.

6am: Wake up. Go to grab phone and then remember that I'm supposed to live without it for 24 hours. Wonder how I'll cope?

7.45am: On train from home in Oldham to a photo shoot in London. Bored and think I'll phone my boyfriend to find out how his morning is going. Reach inside my bag and realise it isn't there.

8.45am: I'm still bored and wish I had my phone to play a game on it or text my boyfriend with something funny.

10.30am: In taxi on way to photo studio. Really want to phone my modelling mates to find out what they're doing. Twiddle my thumbs and feel really frustrated. The only good news is that it gives me more time to read my copy of the Daily Star.

11.53am: Midway through doing an underwear photo shoot I remember that I need to get my Mum to pay a cheque into the bank for me. After the shot I go to grab my phone and again it's not there. This is starting to really annoy me.

1.07pm: Need to phone my agent about another modelling assignment that's coming up. Being on the road I'd usually use my phone but, of course, I haven't got it. Remember that there are still things called phone boxes but where are they? Eventually I find one but have to try to look up the number in the phone box as I have it programmed into my phone. Give up and borrow someone else's mobile at the studio.

2.40pm: I'm back in front of the camera. But in between shoots I love sending texts – about 30 a day and I'm really missing not being able to do so.

4.06pm: Something really funny happens in the studio and I want to send a picture of it to my mates via my phone. Again, there's no mobile and the moment has gone. I didn't realise how much I rely on it for contact with friends and family when I'm working.

6.35pm: I've left the shoot and am in another taxi on the way to the pub to meet a friend. Remember that when I crashed my car I used my mobile to call the emergency services. Wonder what I would do if it happened again and I didn't have my phone.

7.25pm: My friend should have been here ages ago. I wonder what's happened to her? I never usually go into pubs on my own and if I'd had my phone I could have phoned first to find out if they were already here or on their way.

8pm: My friend finally arrives and explains she was held up in traffic. "I tried to phone you," she says. I realise what a life-line my phone is and wonder what other important calls I've been missing all day.

9.35pm: I'm having a great time with my friend and I want to text my boyfriend with some great gossip. Will have to try to remember it and tell him tomorrow.

11.40pm: Staying in London because I've got another early start for a modelling job in the morning. Getting ready for bed I'd love to send my boyfriend a nice good night text, maybe even something flirty. But, without a phone, I just go off to sleep hoping my phone-free day was just a bad dream.

Charlotte's a sexy STOCKING THRILLER

POP siren Charlotte Church proved she was a leggy lovely with a super-sexy garter to store her mobile phone.

Diva Lotte, 19, teamed up with lingerie giant Agent Provocateur and the mobile company 3 to showcase the garter in the video 'Call My Name'.

And insiders say the item was a really massive hit with the singer's fellas, Wales rugby hunk

Gavin Henson, 23. Now the garter has emerged as the perfect girly Christmas gift, although they are only available exclusively through 3's Bluewater store, in Essex at the moment, priced £49.99.

"The garter fits a range of handsets and is destined to make any man melt," says a source. "They're really sexy."

Of course, there are other items out there that will go down a storm this Christmas and our expert JAMES MOORE has picked out 10 top items that could prove to be Christmas crackers.

Check out our hot list before you decide what to buy your loved ones this Yule.

And if you do track down a saucy garter, someone's in line for a super stocking thriller... just like Charlotte!

TEXTERS SO SEXY

MOBILES are turning us into sex addicts, says a Virgin Mobile survey.

One in four people will send an erotic picture message or text this Christmas, according to the phone giants.

In December 1.9billion texts will be sent in the UK and a fifth of those will be sent by a naked texter...that's nearly 38 million nude messages!

And girls in sexy Christmas stockings are likely to be the most texted picture message this Yule.

WHAT SONGS SAY ABOUT YOU

ON MESSAGE: Judi James

WHAT kind of ringtone you choose for your mobile phone reveals a lot about your personality.

That's according to body language expert Judi James, star of TV's Naked Celebrity, who says that whether you choose a tone like the Crazy Frog or a chart hit, it sends out a message.

With the UK set to spend a record £740million on downloads this year, Judi has analysed what some ringtones say about you.

Crazy Frog Style: Choosing

the Crazy Frog or a ringtone like it, means that you're an attention seeker who doesn't care how annoying you are. You were always naughty at school and have never grown up. Even your love life has an air of immaturity about it. Laughter is your key weapon of mass seduction.

Standard Ring: The traditional "ringing" says you like to think you're cool and that you're beyond style. But this just hides your laziness and that you're a hopeless techno-phobe.

You like to think that you're too clever and have better things to do than download ringtones. But it might mean your love life is stale.

Niche Music Download:

Maybe you have chosen a rap tune or an obscure music taste to download. You reckon you're cool and spend a lot of time getting your overall image right. Most of your partners will be the same and their looks and cool potential will be vital. You can be a selfish lover but your ego ensures you make some effort in bed, as you like to boast about your seduction skills.

Chart Toppers: As one of life's optimists you're full of enthusiasm for new ideas but you get bored quickly. Your romances have the same feel to them, with you falling head-over-heels in love on a regular basis but only until someone hot walks by.

You live for the moment and start to feel claustrophobic when your partner tries to pin you down with long-term plans.

Raspberry Sounds: Having a ringtone that's even sillier than the Crazy Frog means you're probably someone who likes silly and making long-winded jokes that, in fact, no one finds that funny.

You can be shallow and boast about what a great lover you are but actually your experience doesn't always live up to your tales.

Classical Music: You're an old fogey in denial. You've chosen this to look cultured and successful. You pretend that you don't care what people think but you do. You're a bossy type who likes to get their own way in everything, including your love life.

TV Tunes: Having a tune

WIN CRAZY FROG TOY

IT is the must-have toy of the year – and is set to be the No.1 best-seller for Christmas. The Crazy Frog has taken the mobile phone world by storm with his "ding ding ding" ringtone. Now readers have a chance to win one – from makers Vivid Imaginations – signed by Swedish designer Erik Wernquist. For a chance to win just answer this question. Which vehicle was used to make the Crazy Frog ringtone? a, moped; b, tractor; c, tank. Write with the correct answer to Crazy Frog Competition, Features, Daily Star, 10 Lower Thames Street, London, EC3R 6EN by midnight on November 22. Normal rules apply.

such as Mission Impossible means life is really a big adventure for you.

You hope to come across as some kind of cool dude and you're probably hoping some of Tom Cruise's pulling power will rub off on you or, if you're a girl, you're hoping to attract a Cruise-type.

Your sex life reflects this fantasy-style existence but holding down a long-term relationship might be a struggle if your date discovers that you drive a clapped out old van rather than that Porsche that you hinted at.

Silent Type: People who put their phone on silent or vibrate all the time are people who always find that they're apologising for themselves.

If you're looking for someone who is wild in the bedroom this isn't them. However, they are likely to be someone who is quite considerate to your needs and generally generous in life.

THE average mobile phone bill in the UK is around $45 a month for voice, text and other phone services. Those with camera phones spend more than $54 a month.

A FIFTH of British people spend a quarter of their day using a mobile phone.

SCIENTISTS say that handsets halve in size around every 18 months and by 2017 they won't be able to get any smaller.

IT's possible to locate a person using a mobile phone down to a range of a few metres, anywhere on the globe.

PHONE FACTS

THE first car phone was released in Stockholm in 1956. The size of a suitcase and weighing 40kg, it ran off a car battery.

ONE in three people in the Britain now say they couldn't cope without their mobile phone, according to a recent survey.

MOBILE phones communicate using radio waves. They transmit at a higher frequency than TVs and lower than microwave ovens.

IN Santiago City, Philippines, mobiles are banned in public.

TOP TIPS TO BE A TEXT SYMBOL...

MANY of the 80 million texts sent a day in the run-up to Christmas will be flirty. Virgin Mobile's sexy text tips include...

DON'T use mobile abbreviations as it will put the person off you and make them worry that you are illiterate.

NEVER text in just capitals as it reads as if you are shouting.

MAKE sure to always include a question in the text. There's nothing worse than a preventable end to a conversation.

IF you're shy, text someone accidentally on-purpose to start a conversation.

WE KIDD YOU NOT: Supermodel Jodie is a fan of phone flirting

Jodie gets down and FLIRTY

PEP UP your love life by turning your mobile phone into a love tool.

Even supermodel Jodie Kidd admits romance on your mobile is cool.

Three-quarters of us have used our phones to flirt and Pete Heskell, author of the book Flirt Coach, says: "Mobile phones are great for flirting. They can be good for making the first move or to maintain relationships by sending each other little sexy texts."

According to Orange, men prefer flirting via phone, with one in three now spending up to four hours calling and texting before a first date. Women prefer picture messaging, with 22 per cent opting to send a saucy picture of themselves to get a man's pulse racing.

And the mobile phone networks have plenty of services and advice to help.

Mobile giant 3 has turned Cupid by providing a service which allows potential love matches to "screen" each other before they meet by viewing personal video ads made by singles up and down the country on their mobiles.

To sign up to the service, 3 customers simply need to visit the Dateline option on their phone or make a video call to 89799.

Profiles

Once signed up, customers can record and submit their own video personal ad and screen other profiles before setting up a date.

The service, in association with Dateline, costs 25p per minute for the first month and 75p after that.

Supermodel Jodie has backed the service. "With video dating a lot of the usual hassles are put to rest. Not only can you see your potential love interest before you meet, but they can see you too." Visit www.3three.co.uk

Meanwhile, try flirting using I-mode, a new mobile internet service exclusive to O2. In less than two minutes you could find a flirting partner and enjoy private text conversations. For info, go to www.o2.co.uk.

ALAN FRANK'S back ROW RALPH FIENNES SCORES IN AN

On screen chemistry

THE CONSTANT GARDENER (15)
"NO drug company does something for nothing," is a line guaranteed to hit the spot with anyone who's paid through the nose at the chemist's for a nasal decongestant.

But while it sounds cynical, this magnificent movie proves it's not.

John Le Carré's best-seller has been transformed into a surefire Oscar contender, combining taut mystery, a thriller, touching romance and a well-earned attack on crooked manufacturers.

British diplomat Ralph Fiennes woos and weds activist Rachel Weisz and takes her to Kenya where she uncovers a grim scam by a big drug company, who are using sick Africans as unknown human guinea pigs in secret clinical trials.

GROUNDFORCE: Fiennes and Weisz act up a storm

Then Weisz is brutally murdered, leaving Fiennes to turn detective and expose some shocking commercial and political corruption.

It's a compelling suspense-filled film whose exposé of high-level sleaze is all the more impressive for being completely justified (I should know: I once worked for two major drug firms – one British, one American).

Messages aside, this is a solid and thrilling film. And director Fernando Meirelles brilliantly matches his Oscar-winner City of God with another riveting and award-worthy story that unfolds on striking East African locations.

Fiennes gives what is easily his finest performance in years. Weisz's first-rate acting is her best performance, too.

And the entire cast –

– Postlethwaite and his daft South African accent (along with Bill Nighy's over-familiar turn) – simply could not be bettered.

Don't miss it – it's sure to grip you, entertain you, jolt you and make you think.

BLACK'S BACK WITH A BANG

KISS KISS, BANG BANG (15) WHEN thief Robert Downey Jnr is unexpectedly offered a chance of Hollywood stardom (actually, it's a scam to get Colin Farrell to drop his price for a movie) he ends up embroiled in mystery, murder and mayhem.

Lethal Weapon writer Shane Black, who scored a black mark when The Long Kiss Goodnight bombed, triumphantly bounces back as writer and first-time director with this cynical, funny and action-packed riff on vintage thrillers.

Downey is teamed with hardboiled gay private eye Val Kilmer to learn the tricks of the trade, but make-believe sleuthing turns dangerously real with the arrival of corpses, crashes, conniving women and vile villains.

The plot has more holes than the many bullet-ridden baddies, but who cares when crime is this much fun and the gorgeous Michelle Monaghan plays Downey's dishy high-school dream girl.

For good measure, Mr Downey loses a finger, which is then eaten by a dog, an attempt at Russian Roulette goes badly wrong and a good, grisly time is had by all in the best thick-ear tradition of private eyes like Mickey Spillane.

VERDICT: 8/10

ACE THRILLER AND SEXY CAMERON SIZZLES IN A BIKINI

DIAZ NOT SHY AND RETIRING

IN HER SHOES (12A)

IT'S not just the old men in the old folk's home – correction, "Retirement Community for Active Seniors" – who react enthusiastically to seeing Cameron Diaz in her mini bikini.

Even Oscar Wilde might well have gone wild over her!

Diaz delivers as a promiscuous petty thief and all-round layabout, who sleeps with her prime lawyer sister Toni Collette's lover until – thrown out for her pains – she heads for Florida to sponge off her long-lost grandmother Shirley MacLaine. Diaz changes from loathsome to loveable as she works with the seniors. Collette gives a sharp, satisfying performance as the squabbling sibling while veteran MacLaine is a class act too.

Director Curtis "I.A. Confidential" Hanson smartly switches from thrills to comedy and attractive emotional drama with a chick flick that won't antagonise men (thanks to Cameron) and with characters you'd be happy to meet in real life.
